

Press release

Matran, Granges-Paccot and Morges, 11 July 2018

Groupe E and Romande Energie entrust Cisel Informatique to its management

Groupe E and Romande Energie, which each own 45% of Cisel Informatique's share capital, are selling their entire interests to management. This transaction will give the company the freedom it needs to continue developing its high-value IT services.

Cisel Informatique SA, founded jointly by Groupe E, Romande Energie and EOS in 1971 as a simple partnership (it became a limited company in 2003), provides services to firms in Western Switzerland covering tasks such as IT outsourcing, ERP integration and cloud computing. In 2015, Alpiq Holding SA (formerly EOS) sold its interest in this firm to Groupe E and Romande Energie, giving them a 90% combined interest, held on equal terms.

Neither of the shareholders today believes that a majority stake in a computing company is strategic for their business activities, when considering that the information systems industry is changing so quickly and offering more and more different services. Consequently, Groupe E and Romande Energie have given the company's management team the opportunity to buy out their entire holdings and transform Cisel into a stand-alone company.

Cisel Informatique SA will become fully independent at the end of July this year. It will continue to support customers' business projects and will remain a significant provider of corporate IT services in Western Switzerland. In this mission, it can count on the expertise of more than 80 employees serving its approximately 100 customers. Groupe E and Romande Energie will continue buying services from Cisel Informatique SA.

No job losses will occur as a result of this management buy-out, which will give Cisel Informatique SA and its leadership the means to enact new strategies for expanding the range of business activities.
